

Is Gender Fluidity One of the Abominations Prelude to the Arrival of the Antichrist?

Sixbert SANGWA • August 02, 2024

In contemporary society, the concept of gender fluidity has gained significant traction, challenging traditional views on gender identity and expression. Gender fluidity refers to the idea that gender is not fixed and can change over time, contrasting with the binary understanding of male and female as established in many cultures and religious traditions. For devout Christians, this shift is seen through the lens of biblical prophecy and end-time events. There is a growing concern among some believers that gender fluidity may be one of the abominations precursors to the arrival of the Antichrist. This article aims to explore this perspective, grounding the discussion in Scripture and contextualizing it within today's trends.

The Bible provides a clear account of gender creation in the Book of Genesis, establishing that God created humans as distinctly male and female. Genesis 1:27 states, "So God created mankind in his own image, in the image of God he created them; male and female he created them." This verse underscores the binary nature of gender as part of God's intentional design. The differentiation between male and female is seen as integral to human identity and purpose, reflecting the divine order.

From a traditional Christian standpoint, gender fluidity represents a departure from this divinely instituted order. This deviation is viewed not merely as a social or personal issue but as a theological one with significant implications. The binary distinction of gender is seen as a fundamental aspect of God's creation. Any attempt to alter or redefine this binary structure should be interpreted as a rebellion against God's will. This rebellion is viewed in light of Romans 1:25, which states: "They exchanged the truth about God for a lie, and worshiped and served created things rather than the Creator—who is forever praised. Amen." The New Testament emphasizes the sanctity of the human body. In 1 Corinthians 6:19-20, Paul writes: "Do you not know that your bodies are temples of the Holy Spirit, who is in you, whom you have received from God? You are not your own; you were bought at a price. Therefore honor God with your bodies." This passage suggests that altering one's gender identity dishonors the body that God has given, thus defiling the temple of the Holy Spirit. Additionally, God is depicted as a God of order, not of confusion. 1 Corinthians 14:33 states: "For God is not a God of disorder but of peace—as in all the congregations of the Lord's people." Gender fluidity is often seen as introducing confusion and disorder into the divine structure of creation, opposing the peace and clarity that God desires.

The concern that gender fluidity may be a precursor to the Antichrist is rooted in the interpretation of biblical prophecies regarding the end times. The Book of Daniel and the New Testament provide insights into the characteristics and actions of the Antichrist and the conditions preceding his rise. Daniel 9:27 states, "He will confirm a covenant with many for one 'seven.' In the middle of the 'seven' he will put an end to sacrifice and offering. And at the temple, he will set up an abomination that causes desolation, until the end that is decreed is poured out on him." This verse refers to an abomination that causes desolation, a significant act of desecration against God's order and holiness. The rise of gender fluidity is seen as part of this broader pattern of abominations that distort and defile what God has ordained.

The New Testament warns of widespread deception in the end times, leading many astray from the truth of God's Word. 2 Thessalonians 2:9-12 states, "The coming of the lawless one will be in accordance with how Satan works. He will use all sorts of displays of power through signs and wonders that serve the lie, and all the ways that wickedness deceives those who are perishing. They perish because they refused to love the truth and so be saved. For this reason, God sends them a powerful delusion so that they will believe the lie and so that all will be condemned who have not believed the truth but have delighted in wickedness." This passage highlights the role of deception in the rise of the Antichrist. Gender fluidity, a rejection of the truth about God's creation, is viewed as part of the delusion that leads people away from biblical truth.

In today's world, the acceptance and promotion of gender fluidity are often championed as progressive and inclusive. However, from a traditional Christian perspective, this trend is interpreted as a sign of the times, indicative of deeper spiritual rebellion and confusion. 2 Timothy 3:1-5 states: "But mark this: There will be terrible times in the last days. People will be lovers of themselves, lovers of money, boastful, proud, abusive, disobedient to their parents, ungrateful, unholy, without love, unforgiving, slanderous, without self-control, brutal, not lovers of the good, treacherous, rash, conceited, lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God—having a form of godliness but denying its power. Have nothing to do with such people." This passage describes the moral and spiritual decline characteristic of the last days. The embrace of gender fluidity is part of this broader pattern of moral decay and rejection of God's truth.

In conclusion, the evidence of our current times aligns with the biblical prophecies of the last days. The rise of gender fluidity, viewed as an abomination, is a significant indicator of the moral and spiritual decline prophesied to occur before the arrival of the Antichrist. This is clearly seen in Daniel 9:27, which speaks of an abomination that causes desolation. The acceptance and promotion of gender fluidity challenge the divine order established by God and reflect the deception and confusion described in 2 Thessalonians 2:9-12. These trends, along with other signs of moral decay mentioned in 2 Timothy 3:1-5, suggest that we are indeed witnessing the unfolding of end-time events. Moreover, these trends can be seen as influenced by the spirit of the Antichrist, which works to oppose and distort the truth of God. 1 John 4:3 states, "But every spirit that does not acknowledge Jesus is not from God. This is the spirit of the antichrist, which you have heard is coming and even now is already in the world." The rise of gender fluidity, as part of a broader rejection of God's design, demonstrates the influence of this spirit, leading people away from biblical truth and towards confusion and rebellion. As believers, it is crucial to approach these challenges with a commitment to biblical truth and a spirit of love and compassion, seeking to guide others towards the light of God's Word amidst the moral and spiritual turbulence of our age.
